A religion should be a set of moral values we all have within our society by...

What many of us have been indoctrinated into is follow the leader, which follow a charismatic leader who makes us believe in them, rather than our growth.

So when we have multiple so called religions named after the person we Buddhism, Krishna Consciousness, Muhammadanism, etc...

Where they get us to become devotees to the leader, when if we observe teachers told us to become like them or better.

The idea we now see religion as optional is also part of us being inside the Roman Empire, where our language divides us, as we don't realize Moses, Muhammad established governments, and legal systems for the whole of society...

Religion should be something that is evolved into a knowledge of reality, for personal development, else we're still under some form of follow the
