The system of governance shouldn't be based on the wealthiest; yet the of study. So if someone is a master of economics, where they have a lot functional; then their debates, and decisions will be based on a more logical the biases of personal wealth, before efficiency. The decisions of people then be democratically voted on, where everyone can vote on any topic. represent their vote, makes people have a sense that it doesn't actually them a sense they can't change things; if people felt more personal responsibility environment, everyone would cooperate more to achieve it all being functional.

This should happen for all given fields of political governance, so let far farming, let healthcare professionals make decisions for what is needed decision be democratically voted for, where everyone who wants to will give some situations people could influence the public to vote in favour of an ideas, and in comparison to lobbying a politician to bias their vote, it is masses to the same decision.
