If you honestly think you are making these travesties happen through praying to your deadly death driven thoughts is not a God of love or mercy. He wants vengence, he does it himself, not through the prayer of an angry man. You really think you're praying to.... There will be many quakes and floods in the future because people are asking and praying for them... God is not doing that. He is simultaneously if my memory holds true... 4 or 5 at the same time all around the world. The disaster... you must be very important to God then. He granted your prayer. What you have here is, there is no openness of the mind. Us humans have the intelligence to create things such as earthquakes and weather through frequencies... WE are so close to God. It's 2005... it's time for the overly religious to start looking a bit to the future. Stop attributing everything to Godly powers. Not that they don't exist, but even if they do, nature is planned out by some angry man watching us from the skies... he is not going to do anything. What will? It essentially gives us none. If he is to intentionally kill us, then we should not pray or choose to change the way we are living anymore. Anyway... i have to stop praying so much anymore, i just seem to find myself disagreeing with people more and more. It is leading to frustration... which leads to anger.. which is bad. So i love you
